Alice Built A Snowman

Once upon a chilly winter morning, Alice woke up to a blanket of snow covering her yard. Her eyes sparkled with excitement as she looked out the window and saw the winter wonderland before her. She rushed downstairs, calling out to her family, "It's snowing! Let's make a snowman!"

Alice's family gathered outside, all bundled up in warm coats, scarves, and mittens. They started rolling snow into big snowballs, one for the bottom, one for the middle, and one for the head. As they worked together, laughter filled the air, and their cheeks turned rosy from the cold.

Dad placed the largest snowball on the ground, and Mom carefully stacked the others on top. Alice helped shape the snowman's face, adding pebbles for the eyes, a carrot for the nose, and a big grin made of sticks. They gave the snowman a cozy winter hat and a colorful scarf to keep him warm. The snowman now stood tall, looking like a jolly friend ready to greet anyone who passed by.

After their hard work, the family stood back to admire their creation. "He's perfect!" Alice exclaimed with delight. They named their snowman Frosty and decided to leave some bird seed near him, so the winter birds could enjoy a treat.

As the sun set, the sky turned pink and orange, casting a warm glow on Frosty. Alice and her family gathered inside, sipping hot cocoa by the fireplace, feeling grateful for the fun-filled day they had spent together. The snowman outside seemed to smile at them, as if to say, "Thank you for making me!"

Throughout the winter, Alice and her family visited Frosty every day, making sure he stayed tall and happy. And every time it snowed, they couldn't wait to create more snowy adventures together. The snowman brought joy and warmth to their hearts, reminding them of the magic of family, love, and the beauty of winter.
