

SARA'S HALLOWEEN ADVENTURE

It was Halloween and Sara 's mother helped her put on her adorable bee costume, complete with yellow and black stripes and delicate wings. She looked like the cutest bee in the entire neighborhood.

As the sun set and the moon rose high in the sky, Sara and her friends set out for their trick-or-treating adventure. Their laughter filled the cool autumn air as they went from house to house, saying "Trick or treat!" and collecting candy in their pumpkin-shaped buckets.

Sara's favorite part was seeing all the creatively decorated houses. One house had spooky ghosts hanging from the trees, while another had a life-sized witch on a broomstick. But the most exciting was Mr. Johnson's house at the end of the street. He was known for his incredible Halloween display, with animated monsters that moved and made spooky sounds.

As Sara approached Mr. Johnson's house, she took a deep breath. The monsters looked so real! But with her friends by her side, she gathered the courage to step onto the porch. Mr. Johnson appeared, dressed as a friendly wizard, and complimented Sara on her adorable bee costume. He even gave her extra candy for her bravery.

After a successful night of trick-or-treating, Sara returned home with her bag full of treats. She sat on the living room floor with her friends, sharing and trading candies. They laughed and giggled, already planning their costumes for next year's Halloween.

As Sara drifted off to sleep that night, she couldn't help but smile at the memories she had made. Halloween was truly a magical time of fun, friendship, and sweet treats.
